Sacred Breath
Indigenous Writing & Storytelling Series

Monday, November 23rd @ 6:00-8:00pm
Via Zoom Webinar Online

Traci Sorell
Cherokee Nation citizen and award-winning author Traci Sorell writes fiction and nonfiction books, short stories and poems for children. A former federal Indian law attorney and advocate, Traci lives with her family in northeastern Oklahoma where her tribe is located.

Michelle M. Jacob
Michelle M. Jacob is an enrolled member of the Yakama Nation and is Professor of Indigenous Studies and Director of the Sapsik’wälá (Teacher) Education Program in the Dept of Education Studies at the University of Oregon. Michelle engages in scholarly and activist work that seeks to understand and work toward a holistic sense of health and well-being within Indigenous communities and among allies who wish to engage decolonization.

Fern Renville
Fern Renville is a theatre director, storyteller, teaching artist, and enrolled citizen of the Sisseton Wahpeton Oyate, an eastern Dakota band of the Oceti Sakowin. A long-time teaching artist in out-of-school spaces and former director of Red Eagle Soaring Native Youth Theatre, Fern currently is director of SNAG Productions, a Seattle-based collective of Native artists committed to sharing traditional stories in contemporary settings.

Free and Open to the public
Register @ sacredbreathnov2020.eventbrite.com
Find us on Facebook and at ais.washington.edu

We thank our generous sponsors for bringing this wonderful event to life:
Department of American Indian Studies · UW Diversity Seed Grant · Squaxin Island Tribe · Intellectual House Academic Programming · Banks Center for Educational Justice